MEET ALLYSON

When Allyson was diagnosed with stage 4 neuroblastoma last September, she had cancer all over her body, causing her so much pain she could barely eat, sleep or be touched. During her treatment, her mom stayed with her for a month at a time. Dad worked 12 hour days to support the family on one salary. With your help, we provided the stressed family with financial assistance for mounting bills as well as emotional support, deliveries of healthy food, and gifts to brighten their holidays. Though Allyson is now doing well, she has to have a second bone marrow transplant and endure more radiation. Still, the playful little girl is joyful and continues doing what she loves—painting, helping in the kitchen and spending time with her family.
